Math quiz

A customer stole rm100 from your shop.

Next day the customer buy a product from your shop at selling price rm70 with the rm100.

So the shop's cashier give the customer a change of rm30.

How much does the shop making a loss in total?

I will share the suggested answer on 7.4.17.

No right or wrong answer. It depends on how you think.

1) stolen money rm 100

2)Refund of rm30

3)opportunity cost of rm70. (Cost plus margin)

If the shop did not loss the rm100, the shop can sell the item to other customer using their own money at rm70.

So total loss would be rm200
